

FIGURE 1

Dairy systems in New Zealand have intensified from the grass-only, low input system (top) to hybrid systems where the cows are fed a silage or concentrate supplement on a feed pad (middle). Though still rare, there are several freestall, fully confined feeding systems (bottom), including some that have robotic milkers.